Kavan's last novel Ice is a disturbing, eerie story. It takes place in an unsteady world threatened by impending disasters and destruction: a global war is being waged while the world has entered a "new ice age" (131). Snow and ice are gradually covering the surface of the Earth, which makes movement and travelling difficult. The Palimpsest Girl in Ice by Anna Kavan Anna Kavan explains very little within Ice. The only sense of weight her prose imposes upon the reader is the lightness of the girl, the heavy gun, and the monstrous physicality of a car. Her characters are stripped of all identifying layers until they are simply "I", "the girl", and "the warden." Ice by Anna Kavan - An Analogy is a Signpost ICE by Anna
